DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 1 recites the limitation "the operation" in line 10. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 2 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Nikolchev (US 6336904 B1).

Nikolchev discloses a system for illuminating an interior space within the body of an animal, said system comprising: a cannula (12) having a first end and a second end; a hollow handle (24) constructed and arranged for mounting said cannula; said first end of said cannula being constructed and arranged for insertion into the interior space of the body of the animal (Fig 8B); said second end of said cannula being constructed and arranged for connection to said hollow handle; said first end of said cannula further including a light emitting diode (42, Fig 6); and means for providing an electrical signal for controlling the operation of said light emitting diode (column 6 lines 38-43), wherein said means for providing an electrical signal are located in a console and said electrical signal is conducted to said light emitting diode by wires (44) passing through said hollow handle and said cannula, and wherein the combination of said hollow handle, said cannula, and said light emitting diode are disposable (inherently, as all things are disposable).

DETAILED ACTION

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nikolchev as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Adair et al (US 2001/0052930 A1).

Nikolchev discloses the system as defined in claim 1, but does not disclose a wireless configuration. Adair discloses a wireless endoscope device (Fig 8), including a wireless transmission to a receiver located in a handle. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the invention of Nikolchev by including a wireless transmission and receiver as taught by Adair in order to eliminate cables and give the surgeon more freedom of movement.
